"I have not failed. I have just found 10,000 ways that won't work." Thomas A. Edison

Course Description: This course focuses on the study of the world around you. Our topics will include Astronomy (study of outer space), Geology (study of rocks, earthquakes, volcanoes and plate tectonics), Meteorology (study of the atmosphere, climate and climate change), and Oceanography (study of the oceans and water systems). This course will use hands-on experimentation, activities, and direct instruction. You will be enabled to learn the 'how' and 'why', not just the 'what' of science. I will show how Earth Science is relevant in your everyday life; you must provide the willingness to learn.

Course Objective: The objectives of this course are: 1. To learn the fundamentals of the material in the areas listed above, 2. To provide hands-on experience in order to understand lecture concepts and to introduce the student to basic science techniques, 3. To review the fundamentals of science investigation, and 4. To nurture an interest in the sciences and enthusiasm for future work.

Attendance: If you miss class, it is YOUR RESPONSIBILITY TO FIND OUT WHAT YOU MISSED and what you need to make up – not during class hours – come see me after class. You can look on the back white board to see what assignments you missed or you can look on my website if you have been absent. You have as many days as you were absent to make up your work.

* 10% will be deducted for each day your assignment is late.

* No late work will be accepted after 10 days.

* Tests and quizzes must be made up within two days of your return during lunch or after school. You must make an appointment with me.

Grading Categories:

Assignments will be weighed according to their categories. For example, a 100 point essay is worth more than a 100 point quiz.
